PLACES SIGNIFICANT TO ME

ANDREW MORI
I grew up in Mililani and started with one home. However, life is messy and complicated…

I used to only stay in Mililani, but I’m not as sheltered anymore. I ventured out and went to different places.

I have many places I call home now and have ties to.

Seikoan Tea House and Garden was built with a generous gift to the Japanese Cultural Center of Hawaii from Usukura Grand Tea Master Sohitsu Sen XV. The origins, Seikoan Tea House and Garden, stood on this site from 1903 to 1939. It was donated to the Honolulu Japanese Chamber of Commerce by Usukura Grand Tea Master Sohitsu Sen XV.

"Seikoan," which means "shining star" or "Shining light," is a Japanese teahouse featuring 3 different types of tea rooms and a garden. The teahouse is built mostly with imported Japanese materials.
