Notice of a Study to Determine Potential for Withdrawal of National Historic Landmark Designation

The National Park Service announces that a study is being conducted on the following property to determine the potential for the withdrawal of its designation as a National Historic Landmark:

Falls of Clyde (Four-Masted Oil Tanker) Honolulu, Hawai'i Designated April 11, 1989

National Historic Landmarks are nationally significant places that illustrate important themes, persons, or events in American history. The National Historic Landmarks Program recognizes properties of exceptional national significance in the nation's history, architecture, archeology, engineering, and culture.

When the study is completed and scheduled for review by the National Park System Advisory Board, you will receive a link to download a copy of the nomination and have 60 days to comment in writing, if you so desire. After the 60-day period, the nomination and any comments received will be submitted to the National Park System Advisory Board.

For your information, the Federal Effects of National Historic Landmark Designation and program regulations are available at
